

Producent: Keith Foster
Pedagog: Helena Nilsson

THE KENNEL

Before listening to the story

Lead in...

- Do you have a pet? What kind of pet?
- Why do people have pets?
- What reasons can there be for not having a pet?
- What is a kennel? Why are they needed?
- How many different kinds of dogs do you know? Make a list – compare it with a friend.
- Would you describe yourself as religious person?
- Have you heard of people who worship other things than a god? Idols, for instance?

While listening to the story

Answer the questions below

1. Why had Lynne been so keen to get the job at the Lazy Hound Kennels?
2. Why did Mrs Turner tell Lynne to be gentle with the dogs that morning?
3. In what ways did the dogs behave differently that morning?
4. What happened at the kennel the following night?
5. What was it like in the kennel the next morning?
6. One of the dogs refused to go out at all - which one?
7. What happened to that dog later on?
8. What strange thing did Lynne hear Mrs Turner shout to Jackie when the vet had left the kennel?
9. Why didn't Lynne go home after work that day?
10. What did Lynne find that had worried the dogs?
11. What did Lynne do after her discovery?

Producent: Keith Foster
Pedagog: Helena Nilsson

After listening to the story

Grammar – irregular verbs

Fill in the missing forms of the verb, following the example!

Infinitive	Past tense	Perfect tense
be	was	have been beat begin feel find get go have say see sit take

Please translate into English

1. Lynne är glad.
2. De började arbeta tidigt varje morgon.
3. Hundarna har känt rädslan.
4. Lynne tog nycklarna.
5. Lynne hittade inget.
6. Lynnes hjärta slog fort.
7. Hon hade sett paket med hundmat.
8. Lynne går till dörren.

Creative writing and drawing

- The Lazy Hound kennel needs someone to help them out with their dogs during the weekends. Write a letter and apply for that job.
- Help Mrs Turner to make an advertisement for her kennel. Start by figuring out how you need to make the advertisement so that people will want to leave their dogs there. What should it say? Does it need a tag-line? Does it need pictures? What kind? When you know what it should look like, it is time to start creating the advertisement.
- Write the dialogue that took place between Mrs Turner and King's owners when they came to get their dog later that day and found out that he had died.
- Draw your own picture of the Lazy Hound kennels, Mrs Turner or any of the dogs.

ENGELSKA ARBETSBLAD

Producent: Keith Foster
Pedagog: Helena Nilsson

Cut out the pictures and match them with the text on the following page so that it corresponds with the story

Cut out the text and match it with the pictures on the previous page.

Lynne had to pull the dogs out of their cages, especially Rascal, the little Yorkshire terrier that was normally so loud. All the dogs - two Chihuahuas, an old Labrador and a terrifically strong Rottweiler - strained to avoid passing the door to the clinic.	Lynne had only worked at the kennel for a month, but she already felt like it had been a year. She had always loved dogs, and had been desperate to get the chance to help out at the Lazy Hound kennels for some work experience. She wanted to be a vet.	Lynne couldn't get King out of his cage. He was sitting stubbornly in his cage with a rubber bone poking out of his mouth. It made him look very silly indeed, but there was no mistaking his refusal to move.
Lynne took the other dogs out in the misty morning.	The vet shook Mrs. Turner's hand and walked away after he had examined King.	Lynne had cleaned out King's stuff from his cage.
The next morning things were even quieter. All these dogs that used to jump up at Lynne to get out and run around, now hung back in their cages.	Lynne went to the clinic room, where the freezer stood.	King's cage looked so empty. Lynne saw something red under the straw in the cage. It was King's old rubber bone, chewed almost clean through.
Lynne summoned her courage and opened the freezer, lifting up the lid. Inside she saw packs and packs of dog food, then she saw dead dogs wrapped in black cloth, with satanic symbols in white and red.	Hello Lynne, how are you? Fine? Be gentle with them today, seems like they had a rough night," said Mrs Turner, the owner. "Hi Lynne, you're almost early! Let's take them out," said Jackie, the dog carer.	Lynne keyed in the phone number to the vet on her mobile, asking him to come and help him with the strange things she had found in the freezer.
There was no usual barking and yapping as Lynne opened the doors and fastened the leads onto their collars this morning.	After half an hour the dogs were all awake.	The light was dim. The humans had gone for the day. Rascal didn't want to look, but she had to look at the door.
Rascal jumped up and stood with her front paws against the freezer box.	Suddenly, before the kennels even came in sight, Rascal stopped and whined a little. She went crazy, barking and pulling, then looking back at Lynne as if begging her to let her go.

Producent: Keith Foster
Pedagog: Helena Nilsson

Key

Answers to the questions

1. Lynne had always loved dogs and she wanted to be a vet, so she wanted the work experience.
2. Mrs Turner said that the dogs seemed to have had a rough night.
3. The dogs didn't bark and yap as they usually did when Lynne fastened the lead to their collars, she had to pull them out of their cages and they seemed to avoid passing the door to the clinic.
4. Rascal and then the other dogs heard a sound, which made them run in circles, growling, barking and screaming until something ran fast between the cages.
5. It was even quieter, all the dogs stayed in their cages, making it hard for Lynne to put on the leads and Lynne had to use all her strengths to get the dogs out.
6. King, the Rottweiler.
7. King, the Rottweiler died. The vet said that his heart had stopped.
8. Lynne wanted to find out what had worried the dogs.
9. (Go fix King's cage.)Remember who rules here!
10. In a freezer box she found sacks of dog food, and underneath them, Lynne found dogs wrapped in black cloth with satanic symbols in white and red.
11. Lynne called for the vet to help her with the strange things she had found.

Grammar – irregular verbs

Fill in the missing forms of the verb, following the example!

Infinitive	Past tense	Perfect tense
be	was	been
beat	beat	beaten/beat
begin	began	begun
feel	felt	felt
find	found	found
get	got	gotten/got
go	went	gone
have	had	had
say	said	said
see	saw	seen
sit	sat	sat
take	took	taken

Translate into English

1. Lynne is happy.
2. They began / started working /to work early every morning.
3. The dogs have felt the fear.
4. Lynne took the keys.
5. Lynne didn't find anything.
6. Lynne's heart beat fast.
7. She had seen packages with dog food.
8. Lynne goes/walks to the door.

Lynne had only worked at the kennel for a month, but she already felt like it had been a year. She had always loved dogs, and had been desperate to get the chance to help out at the Lazy Hound kennels for some work experience. She wanted to be a vet.

Hello Lynne, how are you? Fine? Be gentle with them today, seems like they had a rough night," said Mrs Turner, the owner. "Hi Lynne, you're almost early! Let's take them out," said Jackie, the dog carer.

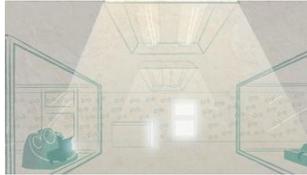

There was no usual barking and yapping as Lynne opened the doors and fastened the leads onto their collars this morning.

Producent: Keith Foster
Pedagog: Helena Nilsson

Lynne had to pull the dogs out of their cages, especially Rascal, the little Yorkshire terrier that was normally so loud. All the dogs - two Chihuahuas, an old Labrador and a terrifically strong Rottweiler - strained to avoid passing the door to the clinic.

The light was dim. The humans had gone for the day. Rascal didn't want to look, but she had to look at the door.

The next morning things were even quieter. All these dogs that used to jump up at Lynne to get out and run around, now hung back in their cages.

Lynne couldn't get King out of his cage. He was sitting stubbornly in his cage with a rubber bone poking out of his mouth. It made him look very silly indeed, but there was no mistaking his refusal to move.

Lynne took the other dogs out in the misty morning.

Suddenly, before the kennels even came in sight, Rascal stopped and whined a little. She went crazy, barking and pulling, then looking back at Lynne as if begging her to let her go.

The vet shook Mrs. Turner's hand and walked away after he had examined King.

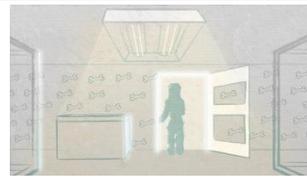

King's cage looked so empty. Lynne saw something red under the straw in the cage. It was King's old rubber bone, chewed almost clean through.

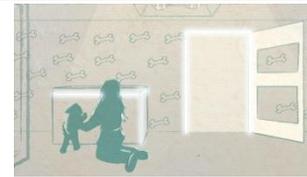

Lynne had cleaned out King's stuff from his cage.

After half an hour the dogs were all awake.

Lynne went to the clinic room, where the freezer stood.

Rascal jumped up and stood with her front paws against the freezer box.

Lynne summoned her courage and opened the freezer, lifting up the lid. Inside she saw packs and packs of dog food, then she saw dead dogs wrapped in black cloth, with satanic symbols in white and red.

Lynne keyed in the phone number to the vet on her mobile, asking him to come and help him with the strange things she had found in the freezer.