After Listening: 10-minute discussion

Joe Taylor and his band Generation Z made a lot of music during the lockdown in the UK. What creative project would you do if you had lots of free time with your friends? Talk to a partner about your hobbies and interests and see if you can decide on a creative project you could do together. Maybe it's something musical? Maybe it's something to do with writing and poetry? Maybe you could choreograph a dance for social media? What would you do!?

After Listening: The Big Debate

Bradley and Matthew Marshall did not have internet in their home when they were younger. They had to "steal" it from their grandfather. A lot of people use the internet every day but there are some people who don't have enough money for it. Debate with your classmates on whether you think everybody should have free access to the internet or not. Why do you think it should be free? Why do you think it should cost something? Do you think access to the internet is important? Why?

After Listening: Writing

In the second news story, we heard about Bradley and Matthew Marshall. They had a tough childhood but are now living their dream – their job is to play Call of Duty!

Write a short text about your dream job. Describe your dream job in detail. How can you get that job? Is there something you have to study in order to get it? What kind of tasks would you do at your dream job? Give examples and add plenty of details. Would your dream job be in Sweden or in another country? What would your daily life look like if you had this job?
