Script and Word list

Keith Foster: Today in Anaconda – Love and passion.
Meet the girls who love to put their teeth into Twilight.
World of Warcraft lover Vici speaks about her passion
And get some smart tips from our dating coach.

JH: Hey and welcome to Anaconda. I'm your host Johannes Hallbom.
Love brings people together. Bee Whelan, Lorraine Cawley, Jessica Connor and Lynne Payne all have the hots for vampires. Some people say they suck, but not the girls behind the Irish Twilight sites.

Irish Twilight Sisters.com: People call us obsessed. We say we're dedicated.

[Edward, she found us.]

Bee: I read the first one and then I had to go and buy the other three immediately and read them. I read them all in a week. And then I read them again. And again. And again.

Lynne: My manager had been really, really into the books and I kind of thought she's a little bit weird and obsessed about the books. It's a bit strange. So I was going on holiday and I saw the book and I said, well, you know, she's so obsessed, maybe I'll give them a try and that's when the obsession begun and it hasn't stopped.

-I saw the film first in the cinema and I knew that they were a book series so after I saw it I had to go out and buy the books just to find out what happened after, so I read them over and over again.

-It's a romance and it's not one of the classics. It's based on the classics, but I mean, not everybody is going to read Romeo and Juliet outside of a school setting maybe. So it kind of encapsulates the best things about romance, you know. Lust and forbidden love and, you know, danger, and you know, love triangles. All of those things are just so enrapturing and it's done in a modern way. It's done very much in a forbidden way and it's very exciting, so it's very easy to get hooked on it. The books are written in such a way that you're actually drawn into another world where you really feel that you can go and escape and be with these characters. And they're very much... fans are often either team Edward or team Jacob. They're so passionate that they pick sides. So it is something that is very easy to buy into and it is something that's very easy to stay a part of.

-Yeah. It's a really great forbidden love story. It's not a typical vampire story, where there's a lot of, you know, like, gore and hunting down humans. That is an element too, but it's more that he loves her so much he doesn't want to kill her. And he wants to keep her forever. And I think that's what draws people in. It's that it's a genre that has been done so many different times but this one is completely different and because it's written in first person people can identify with the character and it's so deep and so personal and she says stuff that not many people would admit that they think, but yeah, it's very personal.

[You just don't belong in my world Bella. This is the last time you'll ever see me. Please just promise me you won't do anything reckless... I love you, every moment forever]

-I've seen it so many times now that I just keep wanting to see it.

-You're going to see it tonight as well?

-Yeah.

-You can't take it all in!

-No, you can't take it all in, there's so many different scenes that you just see it from a different perspective every time and you're like, oh, I missed that line and I didn't get that because everyone was roaring and so excited at the start so everyone was cheering. So you miss lines, you miss scenes and looks that Edward gives Bella and just that Jacob's there as well and all the emotion that's in it, like. You just want to see it all again.

- And who wouldn't want to watch Edward over and over again, in fairness?

-Yes. That's true.

-Would you say that you have Twilight as your passion?

- Yes. Definitely.. Absolutely.

- I mean, I have a tattoo from the book. I think it's a passion. Absolutely.

-It's also really great, because it's brought people like the girls who are at this table right now together. I mean, we could have all been individually very passionate about it, but what we've done by coming together by creating an association of Twilight fans for Ireland is that we have made a fantastic group of friend who share our passion. So it is more than just thankfully us sitting at home re-reading the book, but it's sharing the passion, having fun, meeting other fans, doing events and it's really brought Twilight to life for us.

-So Twilight unites?

-Twilight unites absolutely. I mean it just brings people together and it's amazing when you're with a group of Twilight fans, people call it squeeing. We don't squeal, we just get very excited about the whole thing. So it's very passionate.

- How would you sound?

- Thank you so much. Thank you.

JH: Vici met her ex-boyfriend while playing a Massively Multiplayer Online Role Playing Game. She has a degree in astrophysics and studies game development. In a busy café in London, Vici told our reporter Pamela Taivassalo that she would love to work as a Dungeon Designer for World of Warcraft at Blizzard.

Vici: It's impossible to play casually, like you know, a couple of hours a day and get to the end game, you know the real end game stuff. I mean, I don't play so much anymore but at the height of my sort of like you know passion, as it were, I played for about 10 hours a day, probably, yeah.

PTW: The longest time you've been awake with hardly nothing to eat?

Vici: Probably quite a while. I went to the midnight launch of Wrath of the Lich King and I went to the midnight launch in London, got home, installed the game and didn't stop playing for about, two days maybe? Two or three days, because I was so excited about this thing being brought out. I was on a buzz and I got the collector's edition or whatever and I, yeah, literally about two or three days. I think I might have actually fell asleep on my computer like...quite bad.

It's a very addictive game. The way that it's orchestrated is very addictive. I mean. I play games anyway, I have done all my life, and it's the type of game that you can get incredible into very, very quickly. And just for the fact that, you know, everything, my whole social life ended up being based around the game. I actually met my ex-boyfriend on there and we were together about three years. We met through the game and we ended up living together and you know, playing the game together and stuff. So, just for the fact that I was fully immersed in it, from a completely you know, social point of view, in fact I loved playing and raiding became like a really big part of my life.

I did astrophysics as a degree and now I'm doing a Masters in game development and I eventually want to work for Blizzard. That's my main, you know, focus, is that, you know, get qualified, get in to game development and eventually apply to work for World of Warcraft.

PTW: It's a good game plan.

Vici: Well, yeah, hopefully. I mean, there's an awful lot of competition, obviously, but you know, it's just gonna take a lot of hard work getting there.

JH: As a teenager, Jeremy Soul from England felt a bit awkward around girls – he was just too shy to go on dates. But now he works as a dating coach and teaches others how to find true love. Our reporter Christine Demstader went on a date with him.

CD: You're a dating coach. What does that mean?

JS: It means that I teach men how to meet and attract women. How to approach a woman, you know, what to say as the opening line, how to stand, how to have good body language. Also, how to structure a conversation and how to set up a date – that sort of thing.

CD: So Jeremy, tell me about your perfect date?

JS: I think the perfect date – it’s about the person you go out with, you know. So you wanna go on a date with somebody who you not only find physically attractive but you know from their personality you actually click with them, you know you have a few things in common, a couple of similar characteristics. So I think it’s about selecting the right person and I actually have a strategy to deal with that. Whenever I talk to a woman within the first sort of five, ten minutes of conversation I dig into her life a little bit.

CD: How confident were you as a teenager, when it came to dating?

JS: Terrible! I was like the worst case, which is why I love this job so much now, or I enjoy helping out other people so much. I was extremely shy, I was a late bloomer. I was very introverted and I’m still kind of introverted now to be honest with you but I’ve just taught myself mechanisms to deal with it better.

I distinctly remember as a teenager sweating a lot whenever a girl came on the train – you know – whenever I was ever forced to talk with a girl I had no idea what to say. But eventually I just got tired of it and I started putting myself in the situation over and over again until I figured out strategies to deal with it. And, you know, now I get a lot of money to teach this to other men so I’m very proud.

JH: That was the charming love guru Jeremy Soul. Don’t miss your next date with Anaconda, I’m Johannes Hallbom. For more passion visit www.ur.se

And remember that if it’s true that love will never die, then why do the lovers fight so hard to stay alive?
