

Programmanus

av Kate Holland

KATE: Hi, I'm Kate Holland. Welcome to Newsreel Easy.

Coming up:

- Hopes and fears for Cop26.
EVIE: I just hope that countries will be able to fulfil the promises they've made.
- KATE: And the new album from Adele.

KATE: But first

Huge Shortage of Lorry Drivers

Shops in the UK are warning that some products could be in short supply this Christmas.

There aren't not enough drivers to deliver food and other goods to supermarkets.

Many people in the UK say that Brexit has made things worse.

I'm standing outside my local supermarket. I came here for a few items of food, and was quite surprised by what I found. Usually, the shelves are full with fresh produce. But today I found some empty shelves and the vegetables were quite old.

And many fear there are going to be shortages of other things in the run up to Christmas. This is Graeme Dear, chairman of the British Poultry Council, talking about turkeys for Christmas on the Daily Mail website.

GRAEME DEAR: We'll do our absolute utmost to make sure that Christmas is as normal as it can be, but there is a likelihood that there will be a shortage.

Lobbying to Weaken Climate Report

KATE: Now, how far do you trust governments to make the changes needed to tackle climate change?

shortage

brist

lorry drivers

lastbilschaufförer

deliver

leverera

goods

varor

items

varor

shelves

hyllor

produce

(jordbruks)produkter

run up

förberedelser

poultry

fågelkött: kalkon,

kyckling etc

likelihood

sannolikhet

lobbying

påverkan

trust

lita på

Recent documents have shown that some countries are trying to argue that the world doesn't need to stop using fossil fuels as quickly as scientists say we do.

Countries like Saudi Arabia, Japan and Australia were trying to get the UN to change its latest report on climate change, which has just been presented at the Cop26 meeting in Scotland.

KATE: I've been speaking to 17-year-old Evie. I asked her how she felt about some countries trying to change the scientists' message about climate change.

EVIE: I mean, it's very upsetting, but I don't feel that surprised because I think that a lot of countries have shown that they want to prioritise their own interests over actually helping with climate change.

KATE: Are you confident that most governments will be listening to the scientists in Glasgow?

EVIE: I think countries are definitely paying more attention to scientists and are listening a lot more to concerns about climate change, but there's still a long way to go.

KATE: I've also been speaking to 19-year-old Mia Clement, who is studying Geography at Oxford University, and is a member of the Oxford Climate Society.

I asked her - if we could all do one thing to make the biggest difference to the climate crisis, what would it be?

MIA: Educating ourselves on what is happening across the globe and how it affects different people.

Adele's New Album

ADELE: I know there is hope in these waters...

That's the pop star, Adele's, new track, Easy on Me.

ADELE: Go easy on me baby, I was still a child, didn't get the chance to...

Thank you for listening and speak to you all soon!
Goodbye!

tackle

hantera

argue

argumentera för

fossil fuels

fossila bränslen, dvs

kol, olja etc

scientists

forskare

climate change

klimatförändringar

upsetting

upprörande

surprised

förvånad

own interest

egenintresse

confident

här: trygg

are paying

attention

uppmärksammar

concerns

oro

educating

ourselves

utbilda oss själva

affects

påverkar

track

låt